INTRODUCTION
Tradition is the habit of an activity passed down from generation to generation from our ancestors, which is usually carried out by members of the community through ritual ceremonies. Something that has always been held and has become part of people’s lives, information that is passed on from generation to generation, both written and oral, because without this, a tradition will be extinct. Traditions can also be interpreted as things that are transmitted or inherited from the past to the present. Shil emphasized that: “Humans cannot live without tradition even though they often feel dissatisfied with their traditions” (Shils 1981).

Customs or traditions are usually defined as a provision that applies in a particular society and describes a whole way of life in society. In the big Indonesian dictionary, tradition has two meanings: first, the hereditary customs that are still carried out by the community. Second, the assessment or assumption that the existing methods are the best and correct way. Thus, the tradition is a generic term to designate everything present accompanies the present.

Wood craft is a form of creativity in making an art or design, and can make the art of high selling value. In general, wood crafts can be divided into three types, namely "art product" (mostly handcrafted art), "mass product" (mostly machine work and art). The process of making wood crafts is a combination of mechanical processes (cutting and patterning wood) and traditional art work (manually forming finished products). The resulting wooden crafts are the result of crafts that have artistic and functional content (Shils 1981).

The understanding of the local community develops and differs according to the stories given by their parents (Yanti, Jumadi, and Ridha 2019).

According to an interview with Mr. Muhammad Arif, one of the religious leaders, as well as a traditional leader (customary council) in Cikoang Village, said that: Maudu Lompoa was first held because of someone, Tu Panrita (he said Cikoang) originally from Aceh from a baqdadah lecture named Syekh Jalaluddin. This Sheikh Jalaluddin arrived in Cikoang in 1629 AD. At that time he arrived next to the Dutch Cikoang, he brought nine books including the Maulid al-Kitab "Aqidatul Anwal". This Sheikh Jalaluddin said that I am a descendant of the Messenger of Allah, who graduated from lectures in the city of Baqdadah, where my intention and purpose was to come here to develop Islam in Cikoang. So what he first directed to the Cikoang people three days before his death was about Maulid” (Muhammad Arif, 2021).
